DID YOU KNOW?

*"You never have to worry about anything.
Everything is well taken care of, the only thing
I had to do was enjoy my trip."*

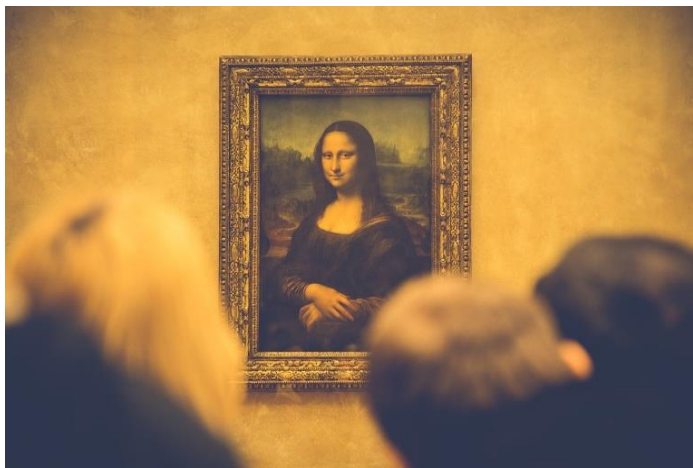

– NATHAN CONTRERAS, USA

The world is full of interesting things and here are some facts about some of the fascinating places you will visit on tour that you may not have known.

THE WEST END – LONDON

It is believed that the very first theatre in London was opened in 1576 and was simply named The Theatre. However, the first theatre in the area now known as the West End was the Theatre Royal, which was opened in 1663. The longest running musical in the West End is Les Misérables, which opened in September 1985. It has run continuously ever since, overtaking Cats as the longest running production in 2006

MONA LISA – PARIS

Did you know that the Mona Lisa once was stolen from the Louvre by one of the staff members in 1911? For two years it was gone and Police were so baffled they started questioning art experts. Even Pablo Picasso was taken in for interrogation. The painting reappeared two years later in Italy and the thief was sent to prison.

MURANO GLASS – VENICE

In 1291, the Venice government banned the furnaces from central Venice and moved them instead to the island of Murano. This was due to the fear of fire in the wooden structures of a crowded Venice and also to isolate the master glassblowers to prevent their sharing of valuable glassmaking secrets. The glassblowers became virtual prisoners on Murano, where the penalties for divulging glassblowing secrets could include death.
